

Summer 2021

As life continues to open up after over a year of pandemic, we are eager to leave behind the isolation, the experiences of loss, being separated from those we love. We are eager to return to work and worship with freedoms of choice and movement restored. Yet, from the very beginning of this experience, many have asked, “What will we learn that will be essential in creating the future that is before us? What must we remember in order to survive in the world that is becoming?”

One thread often noticed and proclaimed throughout the past year is a renewed awareness and appreciation of the created world, the beauty, the rhythms, and expansiveness of life on this generative planet. It is with renewed hope for our earthly home and for God’s reign of a just and sustainable peace that we open our hearts and minds in worship this summer to “The Gospel According to Creation.”

It just so happens that Earth and Cosmos and all their inhabitants have a lot to say about God’s good reign. Psalm 19: 1-4 sings, “The heavens are telling the glory of God; and the firmament proclaims his handiwork. Day to day pours forth speech, and night to night declares knowledge. There is no speech, nor are there words; their voice is not heard; yet their voice goes out through all the earth, and their words to the end of the world.”

This summer we will listen to their voice.

Summer 2021

As life continues to open up after over a year of pandemic, we are eager to leave behind the isolation, the experiences of loss, being separated from those we love. We are eager to return to work and worship with freedoms of choice and movement restored. Yet, from the very beginning of this experience, many have asked, “What will we learn that will be essential in creating the future that is before us? What must we remember in order to survive in the world that is becoming?”

One thread often noticed and proclaimed throughout the past year is a renewed awareness and appreciation of the created world, the beauty, the rhythms, and expansiveness of life on this generative planet. It is with renewed hope for our earthly home and for God’s reign of a just and sustainable peace that we open our hearts and minds in worship this summer to “The Gospel According to Creation.”

It just so happens that Earth and Cosmos and all their inhabitants have a lot to say about God’s good reign. Psalm 19: 1-4 sings, “The heavens are telling the glory of God; and the firmament proclaims his handiwork. Day to day pours forth speech, and night to night declares knowledge. There is no speech, nor are there words; their voice is not heard; yet their voice goes out through all the earth, and their words to the end of the world.”

This summer we will listen to their voice.

